About Vela Oil & Gas Corp.

Vela was incorporated in 2015 and is a Saskatchewan-based privately-held junior oil & gas exploration and development company. Vela was formed and is owned by three members of Star’s current management team, Mr. Michael Burns, Mr. James Rogers, and Mr. Scott Newman, to take advantage of the current downturn in the oil and gas sector by applying their technical knowledge to strategically acquire undervalued and overlooked oil & gas and helium land and assets in Saskatchewan with the goal of developing these assets to production. The management of Vela have a combined 40 years of experience drilling over 800 oil and gas wells in Saskatchewan and Alberta, in addition to providing program management, procurement and exploration services for the oil and gas sector. Recently Vela has been aggressively exploring for helium reservoirs in Saskatchewan, and has identified and submitted applications for over 13,000 acres of helium Leases surrounding existing oil & gas wells with identified anomalous historical helium gas concentrations ranging from 0.2% to over 1.3% He.

Michael Burns, President and CEO of Star, says “The re-branding of Star to Navis Resources Corp. reaffirms the new managements enthusiasm and vision for Star as a diversified exploration and development company focused on the development of cash-flowing assets. In addition, the Letter of Intent gives the Company a valuable opportunity to acquire a significant ownership in Vela through the secured investment of a land purchase deal for future oil development and production.”
